

CIVIL RIGHTS IN WASHINGTON FROM THE 60'S TO PRESENT

The Munro Institute is offering a summer class geared for social studies teachers that is built around civil rights history in the state of Washington. The course will be one week. It will include lectures on the Western campus and tours of sites of past and contemporary movements for civil rights.

AUGUST 5–10

Instructor

Vernon D. Johnson

Professor of Political Science and
Munro Institute Director

Including:

- Tour of Lummi Indian Reservation with discussion of tribal treaty rights and their economic development projects
- Visits to The Wing Luke Museum of the Asian Pacific American Experience, and the Northwest African American Museum in Seattle
- Meeting with migrant farm workers and immigrant rights activists
- The course includes content that offers tools to satisfy the OSPI mandate for curriculum in Washington Native American studies
- Of interest for teachers seeking to build multicultural capacities
- 2 Credit Hours
- Clock hours available
- Tuition fee: $1,100
- $1,000 Scholarships Available for Teachers!
- Scholarship applications available online: January 26

For updated information see the Ralph Munro Institute home page at chss.wvu.edu/political-science/ralph-munro-institute-civic-education-0 or contact Professor Vernon D. Johnson, the Munro Institute Director, at Vernon.Johnson@wwu.edu. Like us on Facebook!

Vernon D. Johnson,
Munro Institute Director

Western is an equal opportunity institution.
For disability accommodations, contact Professor
Vernon D. Johnson at Vernon.Johnson@wwu.edu.

