

Concept Based Curriculum & Instruction

In this highly interactive session for K-12 teachers, Michelle Darragh and Tiffanee Brown will challenge your mind as they contrast a three-dimensional concept-based instructional model with the two-dimensional coverage model. Participants will see and discuss how a teacher can use the three-dimensional concept-based model and learn specific practical instructional strategies that engage the hearts and minds of students.

On Day Two, participants will expand their understanding of the conceptual level of knowledge, thinking, and understanding through learning the key components in developing a concept-based unit of study. Participants will view examples of three-dimensional units across contents and be guided in developing a collaborative unit of study.
