Implementing Distance Learning

Brought to you by Washington's 9 Educational Service Districts

It's time to reimagine schools

Distance learning is more than just "moving schools online." Our nation's response to the COVID-19 pandemic has changed schools and education as we know it. Now is the time to reimagine how teachers teach and how students learn.

In partnership with international education consultant Jeff Utecht, the AESD is proud to launch a new statewide professional learning series that provides individual educators and district teams with a cohesive structure for moving to distance learning -- together!

Leadership Team Strand

Transition your staff, students, and community to an engaging distance learning model. The Leadership Team Strand offers school and district teams an intentionally-designed structure to support moving to high-quality distance learning. The implementation plan consists of 3 phases presented over 6, one-hour virtual sessions.

$1,000 / Team
6 sessions

Individual Educator Strand

Transition your teaching strategies to engage all students in a distance learning model. The Individual Educator Strand supports teachers and other educators through up to 10, one-hour virtual meeting sessions from April through June.

4 sessions at $125 / Person or 10 sessions at $250 / Person

Sessions start April 21st! Register at www.pdenroller.org

No matter where you're at in the distance/virtual learning process, there is a cohort customized to meet your unique needs. Learn more about the 3-phase approach online!

For registration questions, contact Alex Cann at 509.544.5730 or acann@esd123.org. To learn more about content of the sessions, contact your local ESD T&L Assistant Superintendent.
