

Four Free Films on the WWII Experience of Japanese Americans in Washington State

Four films by Stourwater Pictures are now available for streaming made possible with a grant from the OSPI Kip Tokuda Memorial Washington Civil Liberties Public Education Program.

A historical portrait of the Bainbridge Island Japanese American community in the decades before World War II as well as a contemporary story which follows 97-year old Fumiko and her daughter Natalie as they return to the site of the former Minidoka concentration camp.

Length - 15:11

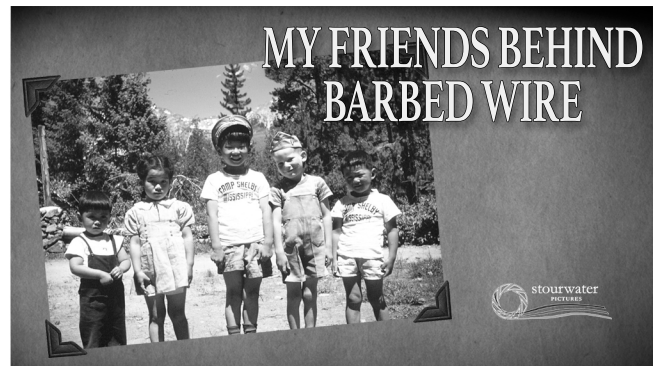

This film portrays the history and struggle of Japanese Americans on Bainbridge Island, Washington, and the legacy of their culture in the present-day community.

Length - 12:03

The story of the immigration of Chinese, Japanese, and Filipinos to America. The documentary explores the history of each nationality through the personal stories of representative families.

Length - 57:23

In the spring of 1942, Japanese Americans in Seattle were uprooted from their homes and incarcerated first at "Camp Harmony" at the Western Washington Fairgrounds in Puyallup and then in Minidoka, Idaho.

Length - 8:59

TO ACCESS FILMS GO TO: HTTPS://VIMEOPRO.COM/STOURWATER/OSPI

For more information contact Lucy Ostrander lucy@stourwater.com 206.780.6928

<http://stourwater.com>