

SUSPENDING SUSPENSIONS:

Responding to Student Discipline

A Custom Workshop for ESD 189

Monday, Feb. 6, 2017 | ESD 189

New discipline laws and data around childhood trauma are making principals rethink the way they handle discipline and student behavior at every grade level. How will you maintain school culture with the impact of new discipline laws and expectations? K-12 principals are in the middle of balancing the needs of all kids while keeping everyone safe. Suspensions are counter-productive to learning for everyone involved, but what's the right answer? You'll leave this workshop with:

- Clarity on the new discipline rules
- Skills and strategies to lead conversations around student discipline
- A better lens to examine the proportionality of discipline data

We will provide solutions and strategies that are culturally responsive and equitable, and leave you with ideas for creating K-12 support systems that work for all.

Audience: All members of school leadership teams (administrators, counselors, and teacher leaders)
